"My pieces are ordered unto themselves, as if space had a set of rules similar to the counterpoint of music. They are, therefore, compositions of the interplay of their own logic."

CHARLES PERRY

Sculptor Charles O. Perry is a creator, an artist of multiple dimensions. His work – from monumental sculptures to innovative chair designs to elegant pieces of jewelry – has an elegance of form that masks the complexity at its core.

The play of form and function are evident in the Uno chair, created by Perry for Turnstone. Perry's work centers around order, space and function – a unique combination of art and mathematics. With Uno, his expertise and artistry were synthesized into the process of furniture design.

Galleries and museums throughout the United States and Europe have showcased Perry's work. Two of Perry's sculptures are in the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern Art, and additionally, Uno was accepted by the MoMA gift shop and catalog for retail sale.

Perry continues to create from his studio in Norwalk, Connecticut. Selections of his work from around the world can be viewed on his web site at www.CharlesPerry.com.
